UK Food & Beverage Sector: T1 2018

Oghma Partners has now released the UK Food & Beverage Sector M&A Review for the first tertial of 2018.

In the latest version of our M&A review we look back at some of the stand out moments and deals of 2018 so far plus include a review of European Health Food M&A activity.

Whilst the perception is that this trend is being driven by the “Millennial” generation, UK consumers in general are increasingly aware of the healthy food options available to them and making the “better” choice is becoming easier. More and more Brits are consciously or unconsciously following “flexitarian” diets and foodservice suppliers are getting in on the action, with tasty free-from options increasingly on the menu. But what does this mean from an M&A perspective?

Please contact us to enquire about the review, to request a copy and to be put on our mailing list for future updates.
